South China is Hong Kong's most famous and successful football club, winning a record 41 league titles since being founded in 1908. South China play many of their matches at Hong Kong Stadium, which is located close to the team's home at the South China Athletic Association Sports Complex on Caroline Hill Road. South China's international highlights include reaching the 1993/94 Asian Cup Winners' Cup final and the semi-finals of the 2009 AFC Cup (the AFC's second competition), when 40,000 fans watched the second leg at Hong Kong Stadium. Earlier that year, South China beat Tottenham Hotspur 2-0 in an exhibition match.

Today the club's most famous players include captain Chan Wai-ho and striker Chan Siu-ki, who are among the club's many Hong Kong internationals.
